National Public Health Week 2025 – Public Health Starts Here

March 24, 2025. Medina, Ohio – The Medina County Health Department is proud to announce the observance of National Public Health Week (NPHW) from April 7th to April 13th. This year's theme, "Public Health Starts Here," not only highlights the Health Department's work, but also recognizes many of the other people and organizations that are working to improve the health of Medina County residents. Public health works best when communities come together to improve health outcomes.

So what does this look like? Public health professionals at the Medina County Health Department work every day to prevent disease and illness, identify trends affecting our community, and promote ways to stay healthy. To increase our effectiveness, we work with and support community organizations throughout the entire county with similar priorities on improving health. These partnerships are where public health starts.

During each day of National Public Health Week, we will focus on a particular public health topic. We will share how we are working on each topic and highlight the work being done by other community organizations who are similarly engaged.

Public Health Starts Here Daily Themes:

Monday, April 7- Food Access
Tuesday, April 8- Environmental Health
Wednesday, April 9- Overdose Prevention
Thursday, April 10- Surveillance and Preparedness
Friday, April 11- Improving Connections
Saturday, April 12- Accessible, Quality Healthcare
Sunday, April 13- Thank You Medina County!
